GREEN IS THE NEW BLACK

DISCOVER TIMELESS HAND-CRAFTED ART THAT'S

STYLISH, SEXY, SUSTAINABLE AND GREEN.

The Contemporary Crafts Market * June 20-22, 2014 in Pasadena!

Whether it is Barbara McKindler's ear rings made of recycled mechanical parts or Marianne Hunter's jewelry that combines gems with antique coins, gold, Roman glass and meteorites, her priceless pendants and pins prove a point.

Being earth friendly is beautiful and in demand.

Hunter's work has been exhibited at The Smithsonian. Now, you can shop for her creations and meet her, too, at The Contemporary Crafts Market, June 20-22, 2014. She joins 200 other accomplished artisans who hand-craft and sell works of functional art in Pasadena, California at The Pasadena Convention Center.

With alarm bells sounding about our environment, smart art does its' part.
Open to the public, see why this show is a gem!

Glenn Dizon's exquisite jewelry is highly sought after. Their studios and energy needs are fueled almost entirely by solar power. Recycling gold and silver "avoids mining and displacing plants and animals," says Matthew Moerman who ethically sources gems to create stunning sustainables.

These are just some of products and personalities that inhabit The Contemporary Crafts Market, one of the longest running shows of its kind in Southern California. All American originals spring from recycled ivory keys, baskets woven with found materials, obsidian wind chimes to Sally Bass's wearable art: reincarnated bakelite!

Hand-made and highly collectible, discover creations with a conscience. From Lois Sattler's ceramics, to Peter Vizzuzi's sculptural glass to Harold Greene's reclaimed

wood furnishings

and art cards

that go beyond words, The Contemporary Crafts Market is something to write home about. Like many show artisans, conscious card creator Elisa Goodman is the picture of reinvention. She's a former casting director turned successful entrepreneur.

At this public 3-day event, shop and meet modern day masters. See why hand-crafted excellence enhances one's life and home.

If GREEN is your favorite color, this show is for you!

This Public Event is a favorite destination for designers, collectors, decorators and anyone who seeks one-of-a-kind objects of art. Products you won't find anywhere else at prices everyone can afford will be exhibited in June at The Pasadena Convention Center's Exhibit Hall. It may be a mass produced world, but this popular show proves why some things are worth waiting for.

Founder Roy Helms knows the secret to success.

Sample QUOTE “Beautiful art speaks volumes. There is a story behind everything you will see at this show. It's a chance to reimagine craft and meet the artisans who create these incredible works of art. There is nothing like experiencing the magic of the endlessly innovative American spirit where creativity and conscience deliver stylish, sustainable sensations. This is a carefully juried show so only the highest quality art is exhibited. This proves beautiful eco-friendly pieces are not just trendy, they are timeless.”
